Knife crime suspects now more likely to get away with committing crimes

\Box .	New data shows action against knife crime perpetrators is down by 10% between 2015- 2017
□.	Despite knife crime incidences increasing by 45.63% in the same period.
□.	Knife crime victims are up 44.40% for the same period
□.	Data reveals the youngest proceeded against was 1 years of age

Met Police data collected by Assembly Member Shaun Bailey, revealed that the number of 'people proceeded against' for knife crime in London has decreased by 10% between 2015 and 2017.

'Proceeded against' means people who have had police action taken against them, which can mean charged, issued with caution or police fine.

Meanwhile knife crimes in the capital have soared between 2015-2017 by 45% and victims of knife crime also had sharp increase of 44%.

Commenting, London Assembly Member Shaun Bailey said:

"Its alarming to see that the Met are performing poorly at bringing perpetrators to justice.

Worryingly, the data shows that perpetrators are now more likely to get away with committing knife crime offences now than in 2015. This sends the message to London that people who commit knife crime will be less likely to face the consequences of their actions.

Which is incredibly dangerous when violent crime is on the rise in London.

If the Mayor is serious about solving knife crime he must put pressure on the Met to start bringing more people to justice. Safety of Londoners must come first."

ENDS.
