

Generic Questions:

1. Do you collect materials for recycling from people “on the go” (e.g. in recycling bins placed in streets or other public spaces) and if so:
  - a. What materials do you collect for recycling?
  - b. What happens to each of these materials once they have been collected?
  - c. What is the amount in tonnage collected for each material and how does this compare to other wastes collected from people “on the go”?
  - d. What ratio of recycling bins to waste bins do you have and is waste collected separately or co-mingled?
2. What are the drivers and barriers to collecting plastic recycling “on the go” compared with other materials?
3. Do you think it would be useful to agree, across London, a standard way of collecting plastic and other recyclable materials “on the go”, and, what would be the benefits and disadvantages of a standard system?
4. Do you have any information regarding the amount of public support for recycling “on the go”?
5. If you do not collect plastic recyclables “on the go”, do you have any plans for collection in the future?

Transport Organisation Questions:

1. Do you collect materials for recycling from people “on the go” (e.g. in recycling bins placed in streets or other public spaces) and if so:
  - a. What materials do you collect for recycling?
  - b. What happens to each of these materials once they have been collected?
  - c. What is the amount in tonnage collected for each material and how does this compare to other wastes collected from people “on the go”?
  - d. What ratio of recycling bins to waste bins do you have and is waste collected separately or co-mingled?
2. What are the drivers and barriers to collecting plastic waste “on the go” compared with other materials?
3. Do you think it would be useful to agree, across London, a standard way of collecting plastic and other recyclable materials “on the go”, and, what would be the benefits and disadvantages of a standard system?
4. Do you have any information regarding the amount of public support for recycling “on the go”?
5. How significant are safety and security issues in waste management in and around transport hubs?
6. If you do not collect plastic recyclables “on the go”, do you have any plans for collection in the future?

Event Organisers Questions:

1. Do you collect materials for recycling from people “on the go” (e.g. in recycling bins placed in streets or other public spaces) and if so:
  - a. What materials do you collect for recycling?
  - b. What happens to each of these materials once they have been collected?
  - c. What is the amount in tonnage collected for each material and how does this compare to other wastes collected from people “on the go”?
  - d. What ratio of recycling bins to waste bins do you have and is waste collected separately or co-mingled?
2. What are the drivers and barriers to collecting plastic recycling “on the go” compared with other materials?
3. Do you think it would be useful to agree, across London, a standard way of collecting plastic and other recyclable materials “on the go”, and, what would be the benefits and disadvantages of a standard system?
4. Do you have any information regarding the amount of public support for recycling “on the go”?
5. If you do not collect plastic recyclables “on the go”, do you have any plans for collection in the future?
6. Are you aware of the British Standard for sustainable event management, BS 8901 and if so, have you attained it or are you working towards attaining it?

Retail Company questions:

7. Do you collect materials for recycling from people “on the go” (e.g. in recycling bins placed in streets or other public spaces) and if so:
  - a. What materials do you collect for recycling?
  - b. What happens to each of these materials once they have been collected?
  - c. What is the amount in tonnage collected for each material and how does this compare to other wastes collected from people “on the go”?
  - e. What ratio of recycling bins to waste bins do you have and is waste collected separately or co-mingled?
1. What are the drivers and barriers to collecting plastic recycling “on the go” compared with other materials?
2. Can you provide us with information on the material content of plastic used in your packaging, in terms of the percentage of recycled content and the ease in which it can be recycled?
3. Do you think it would be useful to agree, across London, a standard way of collecting plastic and other recyclable materials “on the go”, and, what would be the benefits and disadvantages of a standard system?
4. Do you have any information regarding the amount of public support for recycling “on the go”?
5. If you do not collect plastic recyclables “on the go”, do you have any plans for collection in the future?