OPERATIONAL NOTICE NOT FOR PUBLICATION

Mayor officially launches T-Charge - world's toughest pollution tax in central London

Date: Monday 23 October 2017

Venue: UCL Day Nursery, 51 Gordon Square, Bloomsbury, London, WC1H 0PQ

Time: 8.15am for an 8.30am start

Media wishing to attend should email: economicdesk@london.gov.uk asap

The Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan, will mark the launch of the £10-a-day Toxicity Charge (T-Charge) in central London to drive down harmful emissions and help clean-up London's filthy air.

From Monday motorists will start paying the T-Charge, the toughest vehicle emissions standard of any world city, affecting the oldest and most polluting vehicles. It will operate additionally to, and during the same operating times, as the Congestion Charge, making the full charge £21.50.

Sadiq will join children planting a garden at the UCL Day Nursery in Bloomsbury, which is based near a busy road in the T-Charge zone. The nursery also has a specific room it uses as a refuge for children on high pollution days.

There will be short interview opportunities with the Mayor and Transport for London representatives at the launch.

Hi [REDACTED]
Are you able to send me over details and timings for Monday as discussed? We'll need to work with the nursery to secure space for you and to secure time for any lives as we've got quite a few bids and we're keen to make it work.
Thanks,
Glenn

Sounds good [REDACTED].

I'll speak to the nursery about parking – or put you in touch with them.

We can also speak to them about getting someone from UCL to talk about air quality if that helps in your earlier slot?

We're aiming to have Sadiq ready for you for 7.50am.

I'll also speak to the nursery about when they will be open for you – please note that the actual visit is at 8.30am which is when the nursery will be open and in full swing.

Thanks,
Glenn

Hi [REDACTED]

Looks great!

Couple of quick things to correct on the story:

It is expected to affect up to 34,000 vehicles per month (not 10,000 a week).

The ULEZ covers central London initially (not whole of GL) and is expected (hasn't been consulted on yet) in 2019 (not next year).

Please do let me know you've got that.

Thanks,
Glenn

Hello. Here are the details as promised for Monday

Story: Older and higher polluting cars are forced to pay a £10 'Toxicity Charge' to enter central London from Monday -- that's on top of the daily £11.50 congestion charge levy. It applies to most pre-2006 vehicles and is expected to affect up to 10,000 vehicles each week. A scheme covering the whole of Greater London will be introduced from next year.

Outside broadcast location: UCL Day Nursery, 51 Gordon Square, Bloomsbury, London, WC1H 0PQ (the road outside)

Timing: We will be there broadcasting live from 0600. Sadiq Khan will be live on air at 0750 and will be finished for 0800.

Presenter: Steph McGovern

Contacts: The producer on Monday is [REDACTED]. You can contact her on [REDACTED]. Any problems you can contact me on 0161 [REDACTED] until this evening or [REDACTED]. The 24 hour Breakfast number is 0161 [REDACTED].

Next: I'll give you a call a little later to make sure you have everything you need but please give me a shout if you need anything before that.
