Dear Professor Schwab,

Thank you for your email to the Mayor kindly inviting him to join the Centre for the Fourth Industrial Revolution Global Autonomous and Urban Mobility Council.

I am afraid that his schedule is extremely busy over the coming months, so he is unable to take part.

Thank you again for writing to the Mayor.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr Brende,

Thank you for your letter of 1 April kindly inviting me to attend the 13th World Economic Forum Annual Meeting of the New Champions, in Dalian, People's Republic of China, from 1 to 3 July.

The themes that you have chosen for the event are commendable and resonate closely with my priorities for London, where I am working hard to ensure that this city remains a world leader in the tech and digital sectors.

While I am extremely grateful for the invitation, I am afraid that my international travel schedule does not allow for visiting China this year, so I will not be able to attend.

I wish you every success with the event and I look forward to hearing about future opportunities where our respective priorities align.

Thank you again for writing to me.

Yours sincerely,

Sadiq Khan

Dear Mayor Khan,

It is my great pleasure to invite you to the World Economic Forum Sustainable Development Impact Summit, which will take place in New York, USA, on 23 and 24 September 2019.

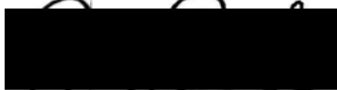

This meeting will gather leaders from international organizations, government, business and civil society at a critical time for global cooperation, to further accelerate public-private momentum to meet the Sustainable Development Goals.

Taking place in the context of the United Nations General Assembly and the recently signed Strategic Partnership Framework between the United Nations and the World Economic Forum, the summit will comprise a series of high-level dialogues focusing on building and scaling up concrete multistakeholder partnerships.

Given your leadership efforts to push forward with the 2050 Environment Strategy which will focus on cleaning up London's air, reducing waste and tackling climate change, senior decision-makers would highly value hearing your insights and learning about your priorities. Additionally, this meeting will provide an opportunity to share the outcomes from the United Nations Secretary-General's Climate Action Summit and the High-level Political Forum on Sustainable Development.

The Forum will work closely with your office to identify the most relevant opportunities that would best capitalize on your expertise and help leaders deliver change. I truly look forward to engaging you in this effort and, hopefully, to welcoming you in New York.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr Brende,

Thank you very much for your invitation to attend the World Economic Forum Sustainable Development Impact Summit in New York on 23 and 24 September.

While I appreciated the invitation, due to the short notice and prior commitments, I was unable to attend.

I hope the event was a great success.

Thank you again for writing to me.

Subject: Invitation to Inaugural Convening of G20 Global Smart Cities Alliance
Date: 07 November 2019 10:02:21

Dear Mr. [REDACTED],

In two weeks, Smart City Expo World Congress is pleased to be partnering with the World Economic Forum to host the Inaugural Convening of G20 Global Smart Cities Alliance. This is a closed, by-invitation-only event.

We would welcome your participation as either a speaker or a guest at one of two workshops which will be held at Fira Barcelona Gran Via on Tuesday, November 19 (15:30-17:30) and Wednesday, November 20 (17:00 - 19:00).

Established in June 2019, the G20 Global Smart Cities Alliance on Technology Governance unites municipal, regional and national governments, private-sector partners and cities' residents to advance the responsible and ethical use of smart city technologies. More than 200,000 cities and local governments, leading companies, start-ups, research institutions, and civil society organizations are represented by the Alliance.

Through these initial workshops at SCEWC, city leaders from around the world will come together discuss current approaches to govern the use of smart city technologies and identify a baseline set of policies which could be promoted and advanced as global norms. Discussions will focus on five key areas: (1) transparency and privacy; (2) safety, security and resiliency; (3) interoperability and openness; (4) operational and financial sustainability; and (5) equity, inclusion and societal impact.

If you would like to join this event, please RSVP by visiting <http://bit.ly/g20-smart-cities-workshops>. Seating is limited so we encourage you to please confirm your interest by Tuesday, November 12.

We look forward to seeing you in Barcelona.

Sincerely,

Dear Mayor Khan,

I am pleased to invite you to the inaugural World Economic Forum Global Technology Governance Summit, which will take place in San Francisco, USA, on 21 and 22 April 2020.

Building on the Forum's pioneering work on the Fourth Industrial Revolution, the meeting will bring together top decision-makers from government, business and civil society, as well as from start-ups and academia, to help scale human-centred approaches to technology governance at a pivotal time for global cooperation.

Given the United Kingdom's leadership on the digital agenda, summit participants would highly welcome hearing more about your experiences and priorities in navigating the challenges of this new technological era for the City of London.

The Forum will work closely with your office over the coming months to build a personalized agenda that considers your evolving priorities.

Dear Mayor Khan,

I am delighted to invite you to become a member of the World Economic Forum's Global Future Council on Systemic Inequalities and Social Cohesion 2020-2021.

The Network of Global Future Councils is an invitation-only community that serves as a brain trust for the Forum and the world at large. As a community of experts, it plays an essential role in challenging assumptions, providing thought leadership, promoting innovative thinking to shape our future, and helping leaders understand, address and prepare for the post-COVID world.

The network also provides its members with a platform for multistakeholder collaboration that enables them to identify creative ways their Council can contribute to solving increasing interdisciplinary challenges. As a Council member, you will work with other leading experts to develop new insights and innovative ideas to inform decision-makers around the world. You will also meet virtually with your peers during the one-year Council term.

When submitting your registration to the Global Future Councils, you will be asked to also register for your council kick-off meeting, which will take place between 1-15 October 2020 in a virtual setting. Registration to your council kick-off is mandatory to confirm your membership.

I hope you will accept this invitation and look forward to your active contributions to improving the state of the world. Please keep in mind that registration closes on 24 September 2020.

Yours sincerely,

Klaus Schwab

Founder and Executive Chairman

Overview of the Global Future Councils

- The Forum's network of Global Future Councils is the world's foremost multistakeholder and interdisciplinary knowledge network dedicated to promoting innovative thinking to shape a more resilient, inclusive and sustainable future.
- The network gives its members a platform to support the Forum's vision to better understand and shape global systems in the face of rapid social and technological transformation.
- Members provide strategic insights, scientific evidence, forward guidance and multidisciplinary understanding of major issues that will shape the post-COVID-19 world.
- Two co-chairs lead each of the 40 councils comprised of 20-30 of the most relevant and knowledgeable thought leaders from academia, government, international organizations, business and civil society, grouped in expertise-based thematic councils.
- The 2020-2021 term will run for one year, from October 2020 to September 2021.
- Council members engage in online interactions via the Forum's TopLink platform, emails and regular virtual meetings (6-8 over the course of the term).

About your council

From global Black Lives Matter protests and anti-Chinese narratives to pandemic disinformation and social distancing, COVID-19 has critically tested social cohesion within and across societies. Responses to the pandemic have magnified deep failures in addressing systemic racism, xenophobia and other pre-existing inequalities and, in some places, triggered significant declines in the strength of social relations and trust among societal members and other forms of social capital keeping societies intact. The Global Future Council on Systemic Inequalities and Social Cohesion will focus on emerging examples of stakeholder investments in social capital – including corporate solidarity against systemic racism, mutual aid networks, participatory mechanisms and others – needed for addressing systemic inequalities and building a stronger sense of common identity for sustainable post-pandemic economic recovery. The council will explore the roles and strategies for all stakeholders in strengthening social cohesion, and make recommendations for mainstreaming social cohesion and social justice priorities across global challenges.

Dear Mayor Khan,

I hope this finds you well. My name is [REDACTED] and I am the Council Manager for the Global Future Council on Systemic Inequalities and Social Cohesion at the World Economic Forum. I also lead the Forum's Technology and Social Justice initiative, Hour of Pride initiative and other social justice initiatives as part of the Forum's Platform for Global Public Goods.

Across contexts and countries, the pandemic has made even clearer how social exclusion, systemic racism and discrimination work against our collective health and social cohesion. How our institutions, industries, communities and countries respond to these impacts and other ramifications of the pandemic will shape our collective futures. Resilience—in a future of further health and environmental crises—will depend on how all stakeholders invest in social capital and mainstream social cohesion and social justice priorities across our multi-stakeholder challenges.

In this spirit, we are convening a new Global Future Council on Systemic Inequalities and Social Cohesion. We're excited to bring together a multi-disciplinary, multi-stakeholder council to focus on the roles, investments and collaborative strategies needed for accelerating social justice and strengthening social cohesion during and beyond the pandemic. With members across country contexts, the Council will bring together 20-30 leaders from academia, government, international organizations, business and civil society.

Given your leadership and knowledge in this area, we would be delighted if you accepted our invitation (and register below) to bring your expertise and perspectives to the Council. Please see attached additional draft information on the context of this specific Council. I would be happy to arrange a call to further inform your decision on the nomination.

Thank you and I look forward to hearing from you.

Best,

Global Future Council on Systemic Inequalities and Social Cohesion

Strengthening cultural ties and human values globally

The Challenge

COVID-19 has exacerbated systemic inequalities

The COVID-19 pandemic has brought global attention to systemic racism and other pre-existing inequalities that have infected the social, economic and political systems of our societies. From higher mortality rates among black and indigenous minority populations to anti-immigrant narratives, responses to the pandemic have magnified long-term failures in addressing systemic racism, xenophobia and other pre-existing inequalities marked by race, ethnicity, class, gender, sexual orientation and other factors within societies.

Making Progress in a Pandemic: Social cohesion

- Resilience depends on social cohesion
Resilient communities and societies depend on social cohesion, reflecting both commitments to reducing existing disparities and marginalization (social exclusion), recognizing diversity and intersectionality, and strengthening social ties such as inclusion, participation, trust and belonging (social capital).
- Social cohesion faces compounding risks as countries make decisions in the transition from initial pandemic phases
In communities and countries with high levels of social cohesion, the initial phases of the pandemic reflected numerous examples of mutual aid, virtual gatherings and other signs of communities pulling together against the common threat. However, as nations began facing the pandemic's political, economic and social ramifications, social cohesion began deteriorating across all countries – evidenced by systemic injustice; widespread protests; resistance against social distancing and lockdown measures; and new examples of inequalities. Several countries transitioning from the pandemic's initial emergency phases face significant declines in the strength of social relations, trust and other forms of social capital keeping their resilience intact, which may trigger new flashpoints for divisiveness and partisanship in upcoming major national elections.

Making Progress in a Pandemic: Social justice and social impact

- Investing in social capital is essential for building post-pandemic resilient societies and achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)
Building back better from the pandemic will require in new investment and partnerships for restoring social cohesion – identifying how new corporate and institutional commitments against systemic inequalities manifest for the common good, beyond the metrics of individual companies and organizations.

- Defining stakeholder responsibility to social justice and social impact: taking action beyond internal metrics
Several companies and organizations are wrestling with intersection of social justice and social impact: mission/moral, financial, stakeholder responsibility (beyond “D&I”), internal roles (e.g. D&I, CSO, HR), partnerships and locus of impact. With future environmental and health crises likely on the horizon, how can companies, institutions and societies address existing systemic inequalities surrounding our public goods and what new collective actions must take place to ensure more sustainable, fairer collective futures?

The Opportunity

The World Economic Forum's invitation-only Network of Global Future Councils is the world's foremost multi-stakeholder and interdisciplinary knowledge network dedicated to promoting innovative thinking to shape a more resilient, inclusive and sustainable future. The network gives its members a platform to better understand and shape global systems in the face of rapid social and technological transformation. Members provide strategic insights, scientific evidence, forward guidance and multidisciplinary understanding of major issues that will shape the post-COVID-19 world.

The Global Future Council on Systemic Inequalities and Social Cohesion will explore the roles, investments and collaborative efforts needed from all stakeholders for strengthening social cohesion during and beyond the pandemic. It will also make recommendations for mainstreaming social cohesion and social justice as priorities across multi-stakeholder global challenges.

2020-2021 Global Future Council Term (October 2020 – September 2021)

- Each of the 40 councils is comprised of 20-30 leaders from academia, government, international organizations, business and civil society. Two co-chairs will lead each council, supported by a Council Manager and Council Fellow.
- Council members engage in online interactions via the Forum's TopLink platform, emails and regular virtual meetings (at least 6-8 virtual meetings over the course of the term).

Dear Klaus,

Thank you for your correspondence setting out the details of the World Economic Forum's new Global Future Council on Systemic Inequalities and Social Cohesion. This is a very timely and worthwhile initiative. The pandemic has indeed not only been exposing inequalities but massively worsening them too. It is therefore extremely important that the way we respond to these challenges ensures that no one is being left behind in recovery.

While I am grateful for being invited to join the Council, my schedule is particularly busy over the coming months. I am therefore delighted that you have accepted my Deputy Mayor for Social Integration, Social Mobility and Community Engagement, Debbie Weekes-Bernard, to represent me. Her knowledge of the subject matter and wealth of experience will make a great contribution to this Council.

Thank you again.

Dear Mayor Khan,

I hope this email finds you well ahead of the holidays.

On behalf of WWF, UN Environment Programme and the World Economic Forum, it is my pleasure to share with you the attached invitation to provide speaking remarks and join the discussion on “Launching a Global Platform for Scaling Reuse”, an Affiliate Session during the World Economic Forum Annual Meeting 2022 in Davos, Switzerland. This session will take place on Tuesday, 18 January 2022 at 15:00-16:00 local time at the Ice Village, Dome C.

As indicated in the invitation, we kindly ask you to let us know your decision by Wednesday, 22 December 2021 at the latest by emailing [REDACTED]@wwfus.org or [REDACTED]@weforum.org. [REDACTED] will also be happy to answer any questions you may have and work with your team to prepare for the session.

Dear Mayor Sadiq Khan,

On behalf of WWF, UNEP and the World Economic Forum, it is my pleasure to invite you to share remarks at the "Launching a Global Platform for Scaling Reuse" Affiliate Session during the World Economic Forum Annual Meeting 2022 in Davos, Switzerland. The session will take place on Tuesday, 18 January 2022 from 15:00 to 16:00 local time at the Ice Village, Dome C.

With only 9% of global plastic waste being recycled, managing waste once it's generated is not nearly enough. UNEP, WWF and the World Economic Forum are partnering with stakeholders and initiatives from around the world to build a global platform for accelerating reuse. This one-stop-shop Reuse Portal, to be launched publicly during 2022, will connect and equip innovators, large and small businesses, policy makers, activists, experts, consumers and citizens with practical, action-oriented tools and networks to scale reuse solutions, whether global or local.

The session will be a unique opportunity for stakeholders to learn about the vision for the Reuse Portal and discuss how to join forces and engage in collective action to transform our production and consumption models away from single use.

Given London's visionary leadership in advancing this important agenda, via initiatives such as ReLondon, the session will greatly benefit from your perspectives and insights on how cities can and should engage in local and global efforts to prevent waste from being generated in the first place. As part of the panel, you would provide short (3 minute) initial remarks followed by a short panel discussion. Please find attached a high-level draft agenda for additional context.

We would appreciate if you can let us know (via email to [REDACTED]@wwfus.org or [REDACTED]@weforum.org) by Wednesday, 22 December 2021 whether you will be able to accept this speaking invitation. We would then be delighted to work with you and your team to further brief you on the session and help with preparations.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Mayor Khan,

You may have seen that the World Economic Forum has taken the decision to postpone the in-person Annual Meeting in Davos until early Summer 2022.

We will be in touch in the coming days on how this will affect our session "Launching a Global Platform for Scaling Reuse" on January 18th, which we hope to carry out virtually, either that week or at another time in early 2022.

In the meantime, wishing you a very safe and merry holiday break.

Subject: Speaker invite: Reuse Portal session at WEF 1/18

Dear Mayor Khan,

I hope this email finds you well ahead of the holidays.

On behalf of WWF, UN Environment Programme and the World Economic Forum, it is my pleasure to share with you the attached invitation to provide speaking remarks and join the discussion on "Launching a Global Platform for Scaling Reuse", an Affiliate Session during the World Economic Forum Annual Meeting 2022 in Davos, Switzerland. This session will take place on Tuesday, 18 January 2022 at 15:00-16:00 local time at the Ice Village, Dome C.

As indicated in the invitation, we kindly ask you to let us know your decision by Wednesday, 22 December 2021 at the latest by emailing [REDACTED]@wwfus.org or [REDACTED]@weforum.org. [REDACTED] will also be happy to answer any questions you may have and work with your team to prepare for the session.

Thank you and best regards,
