

Mr Peter Allwright comments

Page: Draft New London Plan

Section: N/A

I am concerned about the 'one size fits all' approach to increasing housing, particularly where I live in Richmond. An increase in housing will lead to an increase in demand for land for schools etc and will see further pressure on our parks and green spaces. Why does the default position always have to be more pressure on London and the surrounding green belt - who will want to live in London if it is even more overcrowded and polluted ? There are already enough brownfield sites for high density housing development - use all those up first.