

Mr Ronald Calcutt comments

Page: Policy T3 Transport capacity, connectivity and safeguarding

Section: N/A

The Southeast of London has always been a deprived area for good transport links into London. Accepting there needs to be more housing; why does the southeast (Bexley) remain deprived and existing services reduced further. Forget 'Cross rail'. This does not benefit most Bexley residents as too difficult to access from most of the borough. Before building additional housing, extend underground/light railways and overground services.