Enfield Rd green belt serves as a buffer between towns, and between town and countryside. This gives the incentive to separate the countryside within the urban

Enfield Road- Green Belts bring social, environmental and economic benefits, while giving people a chance to tap into nature's beauty on their doorstep. The land is extremely valuable for food production, flood prevention, climate change. Animals such as horses, squirrels need their habitat.

The idea that house-building provides the answer to housing problems simply does not bear scrutiny.

The roads by Winchmore Hill have been ruined and have caused such upset and uproar (nothing to do with green belt I know) but to think Enfield is to be interrupted once again with 'change for the better' makes my blood boil. Please, please keep the beauty of the green fields within Enfield Rd. It's part of its character and needs to remain untouched.
