

Dear All,

Very good afternoon to you.

Please can I kindly ask that you take a few moments to listen to this article on the BBC Radio 4 Program on Saturday 2nd December 2017.

I think it shows our Mayor Sadiq Khan and his deputy Mayor James Murray are the ones that have really lost "The Plot".

It appears you can plant a new tree in your front garden and it then gives you the right to build a three bedroom house in your back garden. With all these extra trees we will have to rename our representative on the London Assembly Member Tony Arboretum 😊 .

This is the last straw and along with his development Plan for London it shows he is an Inner London Mayor and very dangerous for us on the outskirts.

Set the time line to 50:18 mins

Unfortunately people think more of their free bus pass than the dangers of being under the control of this Mayor. We either need to get a Mayor that really understands the outer London Boroughs or we go for Brexit into Surrey before it is too late.

What about all the wildlife back gardens support and the relief you get from being in your back garden able to forget for a minute we have a Mayor wanting to destroy our society and communities.

The government is investing £300M more to fight the rising incidence of Mental Health problems in our Youth and even more sadly our children of all ages.

We do not seem to consider the causation of this rising problem and yes some of it is the time they spend on the internet etc. rather than being outdoors but to not learn from history and the 1960's to force families back into the into High Density, High Rise, Rabbit Hutches is not going to help matters; the only outdoor space, if they are lucky, is a balcony 30 storeys up.

Can I kindly ask that James Murray pilots this scheme in Furzedown in Tooting first, to see how the nuts and bolts of his scheme will work and the affects it will have on the existing Residents, Communities and Wildlife.

Sadly
