I have just learnt of mr khans proposed plans for bexley and wish to voice my concern that should this go ahead it would change bexley dramatically. It would be impossible for the infrastructure to cope. I have lived in various towns across the borough and it is only in the last couple of years that I have found I am unable to get a seat going to and from my employment, I'm unable to get a doctor's appointment in the same week and the traffic in and around the borough is increasing year by year. Not to mention that the schools are having to expand to deal with the present population. How does mr khan propose to deal with these issues? Has he ever visited bexley and, indeed, ever spoken to any residents? I understand he also wishes to merge the police districts. If mr khans proposals were to ahead wouldn't bexley need more policing to cope with the increased population?

the residents of this borough have safety and a picturesque borough that we are all proud of, it's just a shame politicians like mr khan just want to ride roughshod over the local population and destroy the place we hold dear, changing it beyond recognition and, in my mind, for the worse and not for the better.
