The Small Sites Small Builders programme aims to:

- Bring forward small publicly-owned sites for residential-led development, in a streamlined way.
- Invigorate new and emerging 'sources of supply' including small developers, small housing associations, and community-led housing organisations.

What's on offer for small builders?

Sites going through the programme are offered with comprehensive professional due diligence and surveys as information to bidders. In many cases, the principal of residential development has been established with the relevant local authorities. See the site information packs for individual sites. This should help reduce uncertainty for bidders and encourage more credible proposals.

Sites will be available with clear, standardised, site-specific contractual terms which have been developed specifically for this programme. This should allow for easy comparison between sites and minimise lengthy negotiations.

WHAT IS

SMALL SITES

SMALL BUILDERS

It is important to review the site-specific contract and information to make sure you understand the terms and prepare your proposal accordingly. For example:

- Most sites will be offered leasehold, on a conditional basis, 'subject to planning and finance', meaning full payment for the land is not made until the scheme has planning permission and development funding.
- The Agreement to Lease and the Lease may be withdrawn if certain milestones for planning and start on site are not reached. The right to assign the lease to others will be subject to landowner approval. This is intended to discourage those with no intention to build.
- The Agreement to Lease will include a price adjustment mechanism whereby your financial offer for the site will be adjusted in accordance with an agreed rate upon grant of planning permission if you secure permission for more development than you originally envisaged.
- Where a landowner is seeking affordable housing, the Lease will include covenants limiting the ultimate use of the site to the planning permission and original proposal.
- The very smallest sites may be offered freehold on an unconditional basis, so full payment would be expected on completion of the sale.

Who should bid for sites?

We welcome small innovative developers, addressing challenging sites, with creativity and a desire to deliver new homes. We also welcome a range of new entrants to the market, community land trusts, co-operatives, co-housing groups, and custom/self-builders, as well as registered providers who may be looking to develop new housing.

There are no eligibility criteria for those making proposals for sites: anyone can submit proposals for any site. We are interested in organisations who intend to deliver their proposed scheme and help build more homes for Londoners.

You should review the terms with which sites are made available. For example, sites where affordable and/or community-led housing are required may benefit from partnership with other organisations.

Public landowners are interested in the financial offer for the site but they would also like to have a degree of confidence in the deliverability of your proposal and your intention to build good quality homes, promptly, with innovative solutions for complex sites.

SUBMISSION AND ASSESSMENT PROCESS

What will the process look like?

- Sites are marketed on www.london.gov.uk/smallsites
- All of the information we hold about the site will be available and generally we do not expect requests for further information. However, where bidders have specific queries, the landowner or a relevant agent will be able to assist.
- A number of sites are visible from public places. However, where this is not possible, the landowner or their agent will arrange open day visits, so get in touch if you are interested in attending.
- You should review the available sites, associated information and contractual terms, in order to prepare a good proposal.
- Proposals should be emailed to the site-specific address online by the advertised date and time.
- The submission requirements and selection considerations are set out in detail below.
- Unless a site is advertised unconditionally, you will enter into an agreement to lease 'subject to planning and finance'. You will be free to seek planning permission and secure development finance within the contractual terms and the agreed timescales.
- Once you have satisfied the conditions of the agreement to lease you will be granted a long lease of the site which will enable you to deliver your scheme.
- The landowner and/or the GLA may be in touch occasionally to get updates for publicity purposes and for monitoring and evaluation purposes.

What to submit?

When submitting a proposal for a site you must complete the proforma at the end of this document. The proforma requests key information about you and your financial offer for the site as well as high-level information about your intentions, to be submitted as a separate pdf document.

Assessment of proposals

Bidders are expected to review the site particulars and submit an application for the site in light of the information and terms stated online.

Our review of bids is intended to be efficient and proportionate to the scale of development.

We will review your application with regards to the guidance as set out in Harrow's Bidding Guidance document.

The landowner is under no obligation to provide feedback on unsuccessful proposals.

Method of sale

The development land will be sold by way of informal tender. The London Borough of Harrow are seeking conditional offers subject to planning and finance. The purchase price will be exclusive of any VAT.
